Falun Girl Breaks Discus Mark and Handily Wins Championship of Canada

The Dominion Women's Championships and the Alberta Boys' Provincial Championships held at Wetaskiwin on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, will go down in history as among the most successful and outstanding athletic meets ever held in Canada. No less than nine Dominion Championships were broken and Alberta contestants are credited with seven of them. The track was first class, and the general conditions were highly commented on by the visiting officials and contestants. Defeat of the two intermediate sprinters from the east was a great surprise, and when Beatrice Gillespie of Edmonton, emerged from the national tests, she became a prime favorite to make a place on the Canadian 1932 Olympic team, as she easily beat Miss Proctor of Ottawa.

The eastern girls, however, picked up several other titles besides the two won by Miss May of Montreal. Miss Laha of Halifax, took the intermediate discus and baseball championships and Miss Jean Godson of Toronto captured the senior shot put and baseball throw, but was defeated in the senior discus throw by Miss Kopia, of Loyalist, Alta., who retained the title she won last year at Hamilton with a throw of 94 feet, 10 1/2 inches.

The performance of Nettie Anderson of Falun, in breaking the junior discus record, is most commendable, as she threw the discus 85 feet, and beat the old record by seven inches. This achievement was accomplished after a discus prior to two months ago.

Calgary and Edmonton each produced a senior championship winner, Miss Hyatt winning the 100 metres hurdles and Miss Ethel Barnett took the broad jump title.

W. C. Willetts of Edmonton, hung up a new Provincial record of 10 feet 10 inches in the high jump for boys under 19 with Vincent M. Hancock of Taber, a close second.

One of the regrets of the Meet was the inability of Miss Ethel Catherwood to appear Wednesday afternoon for an exhibition performance, as she had been advised by a physician that she had an infected knee which required most careful attention. She also had a fractured bone in her foot. However, when she threw the javelin, over 117 feet, being only about one foot short of her performance at the Olympic Meet, she was given the heartiest applause by the big crowd.

Miss Ruby Andrews of Kimberley, B.C., won the junior running high jump. Her best leap, one of 4 feet 5 3/4 inches, broke the Alberta Provincial record.

J. Koculyn of Medicine Hat, won the Junior Championships with 25 points. Albert Riley of Calgary, won the intermediate with 15 points, and Harris Walker of Raymond, easily carried off the senior championships with 29 points.

Owing to lack of space, we will make further reference to the meet in our next issue. The following is a list of the winners:

Obituary

JULIUS GANSKE

There passed away on Saturday last one of the pioneer residents of the district in the person of Julius Ganske, at the age of seventy-seven years, ten months and nineteen days. He was born in Poland, and came to Canada with his family in 1890. He settled in the vicinity of Wetaskiwin, where he had resided until his death. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, six sons and four daughters, namely, Emil of Vancouver, Fred, Julius and Rudolph of Wetaskiwin, Daniel in Russia, Ferdinand at Millet, Mrs. Stroschein, Wetaskiwin, Mrs. Dous, Red Deer, Mrs. Winter, Millet and Matilda in Peace River, forty-five grandchildren and thirteen great grandchildren. Three children predeceased him. The funeral took place on Monday services being conducted by Rev. J. Ohlberg, who spoke words of comfort to the bereaved, basing his words on Phil. 1:21. The interment was made in the Peace Hill cemetery.

ROBERT J. MOORE

A gloom was cast over the community the fore part of the week when it was learned that Robert James Moore of Wetaskiwin, had died suddenly at Ponoka, in his twenty-ninth year. For a few weeks he had been receiving treatment in the hospital at Ponoka, and his body was found a short distance from the home. The remains were brought to Wetaskiwin for burial. The funeral service took place Wednesday afternoon at the First United Church, and was conducted by Rev. A. R. Schrag. The interment took place in the family plot in the Wetaskiwin cemetery. The floral tributes were especially beautiful and numerous. He leaves to mourn his untimely death, his mother, two brothers, Alex of High River and Roy of Wetaskiwin, and four sisters, Pearl, Jennie, Gladys and Edna at home.

SAMUEL HENRY REIST

Just as we go to press we learn that Samuel Henry Reist passed away on Wednesday, at the age of sixty-five years, nine months and seventeen days. The funeral will take place on Saturday, services being conducted in the First United Church at 2 p.m. Interment will take place in the Wetaskiwin cemetery. We will make further reference to the deceased in our next issue.

CARL HERMAN JOHNSON

Carl Herman Johnson passed away at his home at New Sweden last Thursday, the 13th, after having been sick for only a few days. He was born in Sweden January 27th, 1857. At the age of 14 he moved to Norway, and emigrated to the U.S.A. in 1882. The following year he was united in marriage to Mathilda Halvorsen. To Canada and Wetaskiwin they arrived, 1893, took up a homestead at New Sweden and have resided there ever since. He was one of the earliest settlers, and has done a lot to promote the welfare of the New Sweden district.

The funeral service was held last Friday in the Swedish Mission Covenant Church at New Sweden, the interment taking place at the New Sweden cemetery. Rev. Wickstrom officiated, assisted by Rev. Wingblad. The service was largely attended by friends from all around wishing to pay their last tribute of respect to the old timer. Beautiful floral tributes were received from the Family, the New Sweden Mission Friends, the U.F.A. Staff, Mr. and Mrs. Wingblad, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson and family, Mr. and Mrs. P. Peterson and Vettie, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Elsson, Mr. and Mrs. N. Davidson and family, Mr. and Mrs. P. Pearson and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. Pearson and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. Pearson and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. Pearson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Peterson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Anderson and others.

The pallbearers were Messrs. N. Nelson, Alb. Swanson, Ed. Larson, O. Ellason, S. A. Anderson and G. Johnson.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife, four daughters, Hilma (Mrs. Hillgartner), Mary, Hannah, Ethel (Mrs. Nelson), and six sons, John, Robert, Henry, Fred, Victor and Melvin, one sister in Sweden, other relatives and a large circle of friends.

ALBERTA'S RELIEF PLANS PREPARED; READY TO BEGIN

Edmonton, Aug. 11.—Alberta is ready to embark upon a relief program at a day's notice and has submitted a complete memorandum on the subject to the Dominion Government. While it is hoped and expected that the Dominion will sponsor a comprehensive program, no definite plans have as yet been disclosed declared Premier Brodie, on his return from Ottawa, where he discussed the problem with Premier R. B. Bennett and Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor.

For the drought-stricken areas of the province the approval of the federal government has been given to road projects as relief work, of which the details are being worked out by the provincial authorities.

The premier is hopeful that definite announcements will be forthcoming at an early date.

Balancing on railways and road-work in the National Parks have been strongly recommended by Alberta as relief work projects.

Now that the Dominion House has adjourned, said the premier, the cabinet is concentrating on the practical policies to be put into effect with respect to unemployment relief.

Beyond his hopes for an early announcement of plans, Premier Brodie did not feel disposed to comment on what the policies might include.

Request for figures on the number of registered unemployed; estimates of transients and the names of localities where distress exists, was received on Monday by Premier J. E. Brownlee from Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor.

Copies of the wire have been communicated to the mayors of the Alberta cities.

The government has delegated Walter Smitton, Provincial Labor Commissioner, to collect all necessary material and the same time get in touch with local municipalities to become familiar with the situation there.

WIDE BENEFITS FOR WEST SEEN IN NEW GRASS

Ottawa, August 6.—The prairies are to have a new forage grass, the created wheat-grass, which may have as far-reaching an effect on the West as the development of new types of wheat has had. It is the result of years of breeding various strains of grasses to provide a variety which will be better than any other for food purposes. Prof. L. B. Kirk, formerly of the University of Saskatchewan and now Dominion agronomist, has been responsible for developing this grass. After years of trials and experiments this variety was put through severe tests this summer and these were so successful that it may well play a big part in the development of livestock raising in the West.

In making the announcement Wednesday, Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, referred to the advantage this grass has over others in use in the prairies. It is more palatable than any of the other grasses. It is high in feed values. It comes earlier in the spring than any other grass in the west, in fact being green under the snow. In the west this summer created wheat grass was cut nine times and still remained green and full of sap. Its roots are twice the depth of rye grass and side by side with rye grass in a field this summer, created wheat grass was firmly rooted, whereas rye grass was easily knocked out.

Professor Kirk is regarded, Mr. Weir said, as one of the three leaders on this continent on forage crops. He is being brought into the department particularly to investigate the breeding of grasses to repair the pastures of British Columbia, as well as Eastern Canada, in addition to the development of the created wheat grass to prevent drifting in the prairies and enable the farmers there to be more nearly self-supporting on their own farms.

WOULD USE WHEAT SURPLUS TO FEED 10 MILLION CHINESE

Shanghai, Aug. 8.—Declaring 10,000,000 dwellers in the flooded valleys of central China face starvation before spring unless aid is given them, John Earl Baker suggested today that part of the United States farm board's surplus wheat be poured into China under long-term credit arrangements.

Baker, adviser to the ministry of railways at Nanking, told the Associated Press correspondent the present floods probably constituted China's most terrible floods in the present century.

Baker directed international relief work in the Shensi and Kansu famine region in 1930. He estimated property damage of the present flood would total $300,000,000.

He refused even to guess at the death toll and said the Nanking government had not begun a serious survey.

THROWN FROM HORSE, INJURIES ARE FATAL TO MAN AT OKOTOKS

Stephena Valentin, 36 years of age, died late Tuesday evening in a Calgary hospital, from injuries received Monday at Okotoks, when he was thrown from a horse. He is survived by a widow and family in Jugoslavina.

Valentin was employed on the farm of J. McAndrews, of Okotoks, but the manner in which he suffered his injuries is unknown. He was injured internally according to the hospital attendants.

EIGHTH FORTNIGHTLY CROP REPORT

(Issued by the Department of Agriculture, Province of Alberta, Edmonton, August 8th, 1931)

Rains have occurred in the north, central and extreme southern part of Alberta during the past week. From Calgary to Macleod and in the East central part of the Province dry weather continues and crops are suffering severely. In the North central area rains were very heavy, totalling three inches of precipitation at some points. This excessive moisture has caused considerable lodging of grain and will tend to delay ripening. Extensive hail damage is reported at a number of points and freezing temperatures were reached at a few points in the Peace River district.

Cutting of wheat is in progress in the Southern part of the Province, and barley cutting has commenced. It favored with dry weather, cutting will be general throughout the Province within the next ten or twelve days.

No damage from serious insect or plant disease is reported.

Haying has been at a standstill in a large part of the Province during the past fortnight owing to the continued wet weather and many fields of sweet clover and other kinds of hay are deteriorated in quality. A period of dry warm weather is urgently needed for both haying and hastening maturity of grain crops.

Pastures outside of the dry area are in excellent condition. Potatoes and other special crops give promise of satisfactory yields.

RAYMOND SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE CLOSED FOR TIME

Edmonton August 13.—The government must remain firm in its decision to close temporarily at least, the Raymond School of Agriculture, according to an answer given by Premier J. E. Brownlee to a delegation from Raymond, which interviewed him on Wednesday.

The delegation was headed by Bishop J. W. Evans and T. O. King, who pointed out the many advantages that such a school as this in operation would have for the town and strongly urged that it be continued in active work.

In reply, the premier pointed out that the decision had been reached as a measure of economy and that under existing circumstances the government felt that its decision must be adhered to.

After several postponements, the replayed tie between Wetaskiwin and Lacombe for the Red Deer Veterans' Cup was played on Tuesday, the 11th, at Ponoka. Wetaskiwin had to take the field without Art Lidgett and E. Lee, Callum and Johnston substituting. Wetaskiwin dominated the game in the early stages, some very determined rushes looking especially dangerous. Jeffreys missed a splendid opportunity when he kicked the ball over the bar from close in. About 15 minutes from the kickoff, the ball was sent out to the right wing and Billy Maxwell obtained and put in a good shot, scoring what looked to be a fine goal. Unfortunately the referee decided an infringement had occurred and disallowed the point. Immediately after, during an attack on the Wetaskiwin goal, the Lacombe centre trapped a centre and very coolly placed the ball well out of Whitshire's reach, putting Lacombe one up. Half time arrived with the score unaltered: Wetaskiwin, 0; Lacombe 1.

The boys started off with great determination in the second half and were soon putting considerable pressure on the Lacombe defence, and very soon a nice forward pass through the backs by Johnston, was picked up by Billy Maxwell, and running in to close range, he scored the first goal for Wetaskiwin, putting the teams equal. Ten minutes afterwards Ray Wallis broke through on his own and put in a fairly long shot which the Lacombe goalie failed to hold, and put Wetaskiwin in front. The game now was being fought at a hot pace. Wetaskiwin determined to hold their lead, and Lacombe equally determined to equalize and the spectators had an exciting time. Both goals had narrow escapes, but no further score resulted and the final whistle found the score Wetaskiwin 2, Lacombe 1. This gives Wetaskiwin the custody of the Red Veterans' Cup for the year.

Wetaskiwin lineup:

Whitshire; Turkington and Skoog; R. Maxwell, Dixon and Lidgett; W. Maxwell, Callum, Wallis, Johnston and Jeffreys.

Referee: M. Robertson, Ponoka.

The boys still have to play the final of the Lacombe Cup at Wetaskiwin on a date to be arranged. It is not certain yet who the opposition will be, the playoffs not being completed yet. It is also possible that the Red Deer Citizens' Cup games, postponed from July 1st, may yet be played this season.

CONSERVATIVE PARTY SWEEPS LIBERALS OUT OF OFFICE IN P.E.I.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Aug. 7.—Conservative gains of thirteen seats in the general election in Prince Edward Island on Thursday, sent Hon. J. D. Stewart back to the premiership of the province with a majority of eight after his four years as opposition leader in the general assembly.

The standing of the parties will be Conservatives 18; Liberals 12. Returns from several polls are still missing, but they cannot possibly affect the results. The standing at the time of dissolution was Liberals, 22; Conservatives, 6; with two vacant seats in a house of thirty members.

FEW ALBERTA BOYS IN REFORMATORY

Another record that Alberta is making this year is reported by the government's department of delinquent and neglected children, to the effect that the number of boys from this province now inmates of the reformatory at Portage la Prairie is only six, the smallest ever.

The explanation as given by Superintendent K. C. McLeod is that the plan of placing the Alberta boys in separate homes for individual treatment is being followed in preference to the institutional treatment. Between 50 and 60 boys are now on probation on farms in different parts of the province.

The low figure of reformatory cases at the present time compares with 34 back in 1920. Not only has the number been dropping year by year, but distinctly better results, it is said, have been secured through the probation system.

WILLIAM IRVINE M.P.,
SPEAKS ON UNEMPLOYMENT

The following is a Hansard report
of a speech made in the House of Commons by William Irvine, M.P.,
during the debate on unemployment:
Mr. William Irvine (Wetaskiwin):
I wish to make a few remarks on this very important resolution. I have always regarded the unemployment question as being the very centre of the great problem of our modern world, the problem that has yet to be solved. We may regard the problem of civilization as being focussed in this unemployment question
with which Canada, like all other countries in the world, is confronted today.

The resolution before the house
recognizes the necessity of giving
some relief to the unemployed of our country and it makes a definite proposal as to how this is to be done, seeking from this house the necessary authority to enable the government to carry into effect the policy indicated in the motion. I look upon that, in itself, as a real step forward. I am quite sure that the people of Canada will feel relieved
when they read the resolution; and they will be more satisfied when they read the statement of the Prime Minister (Mr. Bennett) today, when he said definitely that no one was
to be hungry or cold or in dire distress in Canada during the coming year, who was willing to work if work could be found. And the right
hon. gentleman intimated that where people could not work, or where it was impossible to get work for them,
they would be similarly taken care
of.

That, to my mind, is the announcement of a policy from which no government in the future will ever be able to depart until the problem of unemployment has been solved. I do not think it has even been so clearly

stated by any government before,
that the people of the country should
be protected from hunger and cold.
And when we realize that the country
itself is well able to meet the situation; when we realize that there is no richer country in the world, certainly not in proportion to population; when we realize that there is an abundance of all kinds of goods
which the people require, then we can see that it is only a matter of common sense and wisdom for a government to declare that it will see to it that the people shall not suffer
from any lack of food and clothing.

In this resolution the government
undertakes to do what the capitalistic system has failed to do. Whether capitalism will undergo some modification in the future and continue, I do not know. But I do know, as everyone else knows, that it has fallen down; that it is not able to distribute to the people who require
them the goods which it has produced. Here the government of Canada has definitely undertaken
that in the coming year goods will be distributed to the people, at least
to such an extent as will prevent hunger and cold.

Now, the question is whether or not the policy of the government in this regard is the best one to follow.
The Prime Minister has challenged
the commonsense, if the proposed
method is not satisfactory, to suggest a better way of going about it.
The criticism so far has been against
a request from the government for
a blank cheque from parliament as it has been described. The government is criticized for asking authority to spend as much money as it
may see fit, and the Prime Minister
has declared that a limitation is undesirable. He asks us—How can it otherwise be done? I do not think it can be done otherwise with efficiency, nor do I think that if another way found it would be wise to take
it. I think the proposed method is the wisest under the circumstances.
And I have not been converted to
that view by the resolution itself nor
by the arguments in its defence;
for I said the same thing when addressing myself to the unemployment question in the budget debate.
At that time the government was criticized for failure to state in the budget a specific amount to be ex-

pendent in unemployment relief. During that debate I said as clearly as I could that, in my opinion the budget was not the place in which to make that provision. I did not think the government was in a position to say definitely how much was required, and therefore in taking the same view now, I am not admitting that I have changed my mind in consequence of the resolution. I recognize, in view of all the circumstances, the wisdom of the policy
now proposed.

If the government did fix a figure
it would be immediately open to criticism that that figure was either too small or too large, somebody would take the view and somebody would say that the figure was indicated, it could be at least only a guess. Moreover, all the municipalities and the provinces would be immediately trying to get their share
of what there was, and to get it as quickly as they could. If the appropriation was a large one, they would be competing with one another to see who could get the most. They would argue, as I have often heard them
argue, "We have to pay for it anyway out of our taxes and we may as well get as much as we possibly can."
Another consideration is this. If a specific sum were mentioned
the tendency of the manufacturers and large employers of labour
would be to rest on their oars more or less. They would feel that they had less responsibility than before
in our present industrial situation, because the government had decided to spend so much to relieve unemployment.

Taking all phases of the question
into consideration, I am quite satisfied that the government could not declare what specific amount would be required. They could only guess
at it, and even if they were approximately right it would not be good policy. It is far better for us to give
the government what it now asks,
namely, the right to expend whatever sum is necessary, and where it is necessary. I submit Mr. Speaker,
that we must entrust any government, under circumstances such as we are faced with now, with that much authority. The government in accepting responsibility in this regard, cannot, if it fails, escape its responsibility to the people; if it
misapplies the money or if its policy
proves to be a fiasco, parliament and the people will have to deal with the policy again. The government cannot escape its responsibility in this regard even if it were desirous of so doing. We are now taking the logical and wisest step in order to deal with a specific situation.

It has been contended, especially
by the leader of the opposition (Mr.
Mackenzie King), that the government by this measure is being granted too much power. I am not sure that I can quite follow the logic of that argument. According to our system the government, for all practical purposes, is parliament, and parliament is the government. I would say that the objection that the government is getting too much power
under this bill has not even a
technical basis upon which to rest,
for the government makes its appeal
to parliament and parliament is the majority of this house. The majority of the house belongs to the government side, and the government controls the party in power. Therefore,
in reality, in respect to not only this government but all governments under the party system, the government
is parliament and parliament is the government. Theoretically we can argue otherwise if we choose to do so; theoretically we can say that parliament has this, that and the other thing, but the only thing that parliament has is the decision of the majority. The decision of the majority is that of the government party in every case, and the government party
is controlled largely by the cabinet.
Perhaps this is a good thing in most instances. There you have the situation, so what is the use of saying
that parliament is now being ravished
and the government is obtaining
powers greater than it has any right
to receive? Under our system the government cannot do that if it brings the measure to the house, for
it is parliament that is now acting.
In that regard I could not follow the reasoning of my good friend and colleague, the hon. member for Bow River (Mr. Garland), when he stated that the government, under this bill
was usurping the power of parliament. I am at a loss to see how parliament can usurp the power of parliament; for, I repeat, this bill

will have to be passed by the majority of this house which is the voice
of parliament, and parliament cannot usurp its own powers. As a matter of fact, this bill does not seek power; it expresses power, and anyone who wishes to challenge that statement must challenge our entire system of government. I have done
that many a time, and I still do it.
I do not think this is the best system of government, but it is the system that exists and in this bill
the government is carrying out the constitutional method. There is nothing wrong with that. Anyone who criticizes it ought to challenge the system itself, because that is the only ground he would have in this connection.

To pass on to the other phase of
the question which has been touched
those who replied to him, in regard to the powers whereby the government seeks to enforce law and order,
any government must be clothed
with powers to act in an emergency
in order to protect the system for which it stands. That is a principle which cannot be put aside even though we may not be supporters of the government or of the order of society which it represents. The power
to meet any emergency is inseparable from the idea of government; it is inherent in government.
A government without power to protect itself is not a government at all.
I do not know that Canada is in any
great danger of revolutionary uprising at present; I would say that probably it is in less danger in that respect than any other country in the world, but I know as well as any other hon. member that there are those who seek to upset by force
this system, not only in this country
but in all others, and they do not hesitate to say so. They declare that all governments exist by force,
which is true, and they say that we
can upset that government or system only by force. They openly say:

Teas are not alike try Salada flavour "SALADA" TEA

'Fresh from the gardens'

We are out by force to upset that system. They know quite well that power of this kind is inherent in government and they do not hesitate to declare. I do not know to what extent the danger may be from that quarter; I think it is very small; but if there were a danger I would not want to accept the responsibility of not having provision made to take care of it. When there are numbers of people in the country who openly declare they are out
to upset the whole system by force,
I do not consider that method intelligent, and I am still trying to hold on
to my faith in the possibility of modifying our present system through intelligence. While I do not agree with the system as it exists today;
while I have every hope that a new system will be established, nevertheless I can see that if the system as it is were swept away by those who would seek to destroy it, I would be defeated in trying to modify the system through intelligence just as
those who believe in the system would be defeated. To that extent there is no middle course; we must either
openly and avowedly take our side
with those who stand for the overthrow of the system by force, or else
give our support both moral and
direct to the protection of the system
as it exists. Therefore, I see no objection to giving the government the authority which it asks. Even, if there is no danger of their having to use it, the government must be clothed with that authority. I hope the clothes fit well; if they do not, the government will have to pay for the misfit.

I would deplore nothing more than
civil disruption to any degree in Canada next year or any other year; I would deplore that there should be any act which would warrant the government in exercising that power, but it would be equally deplorable
if conditions arose which demand its exercise and the government did not have the right to use it. So from that point of view I see no reason why
this measure should not be passed.

Wee-Ya-Te-Quah-Payo—The Pale-Face Chief

Forty years ago, by the winding banks of the Moose Jaw river in Saskatchewan, Black Bull, chief of a mighty tribe of warriors, sat in front of his tepee. Sprawled on the ground at his feet was a small pale-face boy, whose home was in a nearby settlement. He listened attentively to stories of buffalo
hunting and tribal wars.

So it came to pass that only a few days ago this little chap, now grown to manhood, stood before the descendants of Black Bull, not far from the creek in which he splashed
as a lad. The sun went down in the west like a ball of fire and to the chant of the red-men and the muf-
fled sound of tom-toms, he was admitted to the council of the Crees,
a member of the ancient tribe—an Indian chief.

With all the colorful ceremony of Indian initiation he was given the name of Chief Wee-Ya-Te-Quah-Payo. Chief John Piapot and Chief Achim Piapot, rugged of face, regni-ng in mind, stood on either side of his pale-face brother. The Indian women and ancient warriors, sitting in a large circle, granted their approval as the green blanket of
office was placed about his shoulder
and the huge head-dress of a
chief placed upon his head.

The newly created chief was Mr.
A. E. Whitmore, president of the Regina Exhibition Association,
vice-chairman of the executive and
finance committee of the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference to be held at Regina in 1932 and prominent western business man.
Chief John Piapot called upon his Indian brothers and the huge crowd
attending the ceremony to witness
that Chief Wee-Ya-Te-Quah-Payo (or "Smiling Face") was being thus honored because of his outstanding efforts in the development of the land which once was the home of the Crees and the Sioux and of the buffalo. "Him do much for all,"
said Chief Piapot in his native language. "Him big chief of Exhibition. Him big chief of Exhibition many moons soon." Referring to the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference at Regina next year.

The official interpreter then proceeded to tell how Chief Piapot
wanted all to know that the Indians,
hundreds of whom are now engaged
in the peaceful occupation of agriculture on the prairies, were all getting ready to take part in next year's world-wide event at Regina
and how many of them would be sending samples of their grain to be entered in the competitive
classes. "The Indians are looking forward to this great exhibition
next year," continued the interpreter, "because they will meet their pale-face brothers from many countries at Regina. They are looking forward with great joy to seeing the son of the Great White Chief (H.R.H. the Prince of Wales,

who it is hoped will officially open
the 1932 exhibition and conference)
and so they want to honor one of the men who has done so much to get the wonderful exhibition of
next year ready."

Then came the turn of the new chief to speak. Without the slightest warning he spoke to the Indians
in their own language. For a few seconds only his voice could be heard. The huge crowd in the grandstand sat in their seats hushed. Suddenly the Indians began to rock backward and forward, grunt
and clap their hands as they realized
that their new chief was indeed
worthy of admission to their councils. As a boy he had learned the language of the Indians in his
rooms with Black Bull, and now,
as the new chief, he was able to converse with them to their complete understanding.

Chief Smiling Face thanked his brothers for the honor conferred upon him and told them that next
year when from many lands hundreds of pale-face brothers would come to Regina the Crees and the Sioux would be called upon to greet them. And a little later, as the stars twinkled and the glow of the camp fire lit up the tepees, the new
chief with the older men on either side of him, sat at his first council.

The Mother of Seven Children Used It for Diarrhoea

Mrs. Ray Drinkwater, R.R. No. 2, Hagonville,
Ont., writes: "I am the mother of seven children,
and last summer one of them, 17 months old, was taken very sick with diarrhoea, and I thought she was going to die."
"My husband went 7 miles to see what my sister
had given her baby, and he came home with a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I gave the child a few doses and she was soon well again."
"My other children also had diarrhoea at that time and I gave them 'Dr. Fowler's' with the same result."

LUCE and LUCEY

(By Ellis Parker Butler)

I don't know that I would have mixed in this business, being easy going mostly. If Mrs. S. Gantler had not got my tender up the day it started.

Along about ten o'clock that morning my sister Emma, who is Mrs. Will Tanner, came out in the yard where I was sitting in a sort of chair I had fixed out of a barrel, looking at the birds and wondering if I would go down to the store for a package of tobacco or wait till afternoon. I figured that if I smoked slow, the tobacco I had would last until afternoon maybe.

"Willard," Emma said, "if you don't have to sit there doing nothing won't you please go in and clean the ashes out of the fireplace in the parlor?"

"Hardly any use for it," I said, "it ain't going to be cold enough for a fire today. I was figuring on going down to get me some tobacco if you could spare me a quarter dollar."

"You go in and clean out those ashes!" Emma said. "I'm tired of telling you to. Mr. and Mrs. Gantler are coming over this afternoon for a conference about Lucy and Lucius and I want things nice. And furthermore, I won't give you a cent till you do."

"Oh, well!" I said and got out of the chair. "I guess I won't go down to the store this afternoon anyway. What's all this conferring about? You decided Lucy and Lucius are old enough to get married at last?"

"I don't know whether they are or not," Emma said. "What's the matter with you?"

ing to decide. Are you going to take up those ashes or do I have to do it myself?"

So I took up the ashes. And along about three o'clock in the afternoon I was sitting on the little chair between the piano and the wall, because I don't want to be in anybody's way at any time or to crowd myself in where I'm not wanted. Lucy was the first to come in and she saw me and came over and gave me a kiss.

"Uncle Willard," she said, "isn't it lovely? I just know it is all going to be settled this afternoon and I'm so happy!"

"Well," I said, "we'll hope for the best; nobody can tell."

Then Luce came. He was all dressed up in his best garments with new yellow shoes that squeaked when he walked. They seemed to distress him some because of the noise they made and I don't blame him. I don't go so far as to say that the way Emma had set the chairs was like a funeral but it was like a courtroom solemn and serious. He spoke to me then he gave Lucy a kiss and she clung to him and said "Oh, Luce, Luce!" and when that was finished he took a handkerchief from a pocket and wiped his face.

"I think they are going to let us," he said nervously. "Father spoke as though they might if everything can be arranged to suit. I do hope—"

Emma came down. "You and Lucius will sit here," she told Lucy, showing her two chairs that were side by side. "I do hope your parents won't be too difficult, Lucius; they can be. The less you and Lucy say the better, and there's nothing you need say any way. We know what you want and we will arrange everything for the best."

I heard Will Tanner's car drive into the yard and stop and presently he came in.

"Not here yet?" he said looking at his watch. "I'm two minutes early. How do you do, Lucius. Emma, did you make lemonade?"

"I decided to have ginger ale," Emma told him.

"A mistake! I think that is a mistake," Will said. "I think Sarah prefers lemonade. But it is too late now. Sometimes, I hope, you'll learn to pay some attention to my suggestions!"

But Ed. Gantler and Sarah came just then, so Emma said nothing. She went to the door to welcome Lucius' parents and, a couple of minutes later, the rest of them came. Lucy and Lucius were seated in a circle. Luce and Lucy sat side by side as meek as two rabbits, with the others facing them, and there was I in the background. Ed. Gantler started the proceedings.

Now Ed. Gantler's a bad fellow. Ed is a might fine fellow. Ed is mighty well liked in Denton and he made his money there—close to five hundred thousand dollars, folks say. He's firm I will say and he is chunky and he says things in a firm chunky way. His wife Sarah, I don't like her and I don't know whether they are all the same ways, but that's mostly my taste—some do like her. She's as keen on managing things and folks as Ed is, and I say she has a hardish mouth. It falls into a straight line when she isn't using it. Her eyes have a quick look. She looks from one to another as if she did not trust anyone she wasn't looking at.

Between them Ed and Sarah had brought up Lucius so well and carefully that he did not dare call his breath his own. His folks had bought his clothes, superintended his tonsils and chosen his toothpaste, and the only thing he had ever done without their advance approval was to fall in love with Lucy Tanner. That happened to suit them, and my guess is that it suited them because they saw that Lucy would be as easy to manage as Lucius was. So all were agreed that it would be a good idea for Lucy and Lucius to get married.

"This is fine!" Ed. said. "That is what I like to see, amity and agreement and everybody set on doing the best for these two children. We can get this settled in no time. I suppose you two young folks haven't decided you don't want each other?"

"I know how Lucius feels," said his mother.

"And Lucy hasn't changed," said Emma.

"Then everything is fine," said Ed. "I don't know a better fitted couple to make a happy voyage on the sea of matrimony. The only thing is, to get them started right. We're all agreed it is right to let them get married?"

"I approve of it," said Will.

"And the ladies?" Ed. asked.

"Yes," said Emma.

"By all means; Lucy is a fine girl," said Sarah.

"I have to run up to Chicago the first week in June," Ed. said. "He back the eighth. I think that Wednesday the twelfth is a good day for the wedding."

Will and Emma agreed to that. Then Ed. said he had been looking into trips a little and felt that a good wedding tour would be for two weeks—Chicago, then by way of Niagara Falls to Toronto and Montreal and Quebec.

"By auto?"

"By train," Ed. said. "I don't like to have Lucius drive my car unless I'm along and I can't get away for two weeks just then. And meanwhile Sarah will be fitting up the house for Luce and Lucy. We've rented the Graham cottage for them."

"Graham wanted forty dollars a month for it," Sarah said, "but I got him down to thirty-five on a five-year lease."

"Suits me perfectly," Emma said. "It's a nice cottage."

Sarah said "I'm thinking of having the paper scraped off and the walls painted. And walnut furniture for the bedroom and mahogany in the living room."

"Well, come now," said Ed. "You two women can decide all that between now and then. Those are incidents. Let me see. We've fixed the date, we have fixed the trip and we have fixed the house. Now, about the future! Now we come to the important business. You still think Luce ought to stay in the bank, Will?"

"I certainly do," Ed. Will said. "A steady salary, that's the thing for young married folks. A good job is the thing, I say."

"Yes, but where will it get them?" demanded Ed. "I don't mean to die for quite a while yet, Will, and the most Luce could look forward to would be old Baby's job. Twelve hundred a year. Now, if you put Luce in business—"

"Just exactly what I've been telling Will right along," Emma said. "A man in business has a chance to get ahead. I tell him that if he and you start Lucius off with two thousand dollars apiece—call it a wedding gift if you want—he'll have a chance to get ahead."

"Well, I'm not going to be stubborn about it," Will said. "Ed. knows the chances in the bank better than I do. I'm willing to agree to what suits all parties. We'll put Lucius in business then. Now what kind of business?"

"Real estate, insurance and loans," said Ed. promptly.

"Oh, but that—" Emma began. "I don't all that a business, do you? I thought you meant a store."

"What kind of a store?"

"Well, we certainly do need a live drug store in Denton," Emma said.

"With books and a soda fountain and a lunch counter. Old Minwell's place is a disgrace."

Lucius coughed just then and all four of the parents turned to look at him.

"What did you say?" asked Sarah sharply.

"I didn't say anything; I just coughed," said Lucius.

"You aren't taking cold, are you?" Sarah asked him. "Do you feel a draught? Emma, do you think there is a draught where Lucius is sitting?"

"It wasn't anything," said Lucius eager to please.

"Don't do it again," said Sarah.

"You have interrupted us. Ed, there is something in what Emma says. Denton does need a good drug store. With four thousand dollars—"

"That was where I made my mistake. That was where I was foolish enough to pretend I had a right to live."

"This town needs a good tobacco store," I said. "Half the time a man can't get the sort of tobacco he—"

Mrs. Ed. Gantler turned her head in my direction.

"Indeed!" she said. "I am certain, Willard, that we are not interested in what sort of tobacco a man can get. And as this is an important conference, perhaps only those who are entitled to should speak. Or am I to understand that you wish to give two thousand dollars to Lucy and Lucius as we are doing?"

Well, that was a mighty mean slam. She knew well enough I hadn't two thousand dollars—or two thousand cents. I was so mad I could hardly speak, but I got up and walked to the door and at the door I turned my anger on her. I spoke right out.

"That's a nice way to talk!" I said and I turned my back on her and marched out. I certainly was boiling mad.

Between the four of them they had the wedding the way they wanted it. Ed. Gantler bought the tickets and made the reservations; and Luce and Lucy took the wedding trip to Chicago and Niagara Falls and Montreal and Quebec and came back home to the Graham cottage. The cottage was all fixed up complete for them and so was Luce's real estate, insurance and loan office Ed. and Will had bought the desks and all and signed up the insurance agencies; and between them they told Luce how the business ought to be run while Luce looked out of the window or wrote his initials on it with his fingers.

About a week after they returned to Denton from their wedding trip, I dropped in to see Luce and there was Lucy plugging at the typewriting machine with two fingers and looking as if she was settled there in the office for keeps.

"Hello, Lucy," I said; "you going to work here too?"

"I thought I might help Lucius. Uncle Willard," she said. "I think I'll like it. I'll be with Lucius more."

"But sakes alive," I said. "It's almost noon-time. Ain't you got to get a meal for Luce?"

"Mother Gantler is getting our meals for us," Lucy said, and got quite red in the face. "My cooking didn't seem to be the sort Luce is used to."

"Did Luce say that?" I asked her.

"No," Luce wouldn't," Lucy said. "But Mother Gantler knows just what kind of cooking Luce is fond of. It didn't seem—" she hesitated. "It doesn't annoy Mother Gantler so much when I am not there. She and mother don't just about understand everything and it makes me nervous, Uncle Willard. It isn't as if it was any real help to them."

"My gracious, Lucy!" I cried. "You don't mean to tell me those two old hens have drove you plumb out of your own house, do you? Well, by golly—"

"It—it saves me a lot of work," poor Lucy said. "It gives me a chance to help Luce down here. It's real—real constant!"

"I suppose," I said, "those two old interfering hens let you and Lucius use your house to sleep in some

Neighborhood NEWS

WINFIELD

The hallstom of last week left ravaged fields and ruined gardens and blasted hopes in its wake. Just the edge of the storm hit the town itself, its course being west and south of here. The hallstones were reported by several to have been of the size of hens eggs. That being the case, what wonder that windows were smashed and many roofs torn so that everything in some houses was drenched.

At a gathering of the young people at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Huband, it was decided to form a club and the following officers were elected: J. Thrasher, president; Mrs. Taylor, vice-president; Miss Richarda Huband, secretary.

Mr. Carter our postmaster, states that the second hatch of bluebirds has developed enough to fly well. Cecil Banks reports having seen a big bear recently. Said bear had devoured his lunch, upset his rifle, and was busily exploring the pockets of his jacket when discovered.

The regular monthly meeting of Winfield U.F.A. took place Friday evening in the school. Our delegate to the Farm Young People's Week (Junior Conference), Eugene Francis, gave a very interesting talk on his visit there. Later, cards, community singing, etc., combined to make a very pleasant evening.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Stady, their daughter, Mrs. Murray, and Mr. Woodbridge, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Groulx last week.

For the last two Sundays ball practices have been held on the Fife place, west of town.

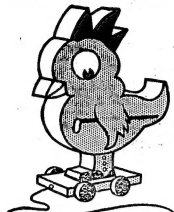

The Winfield-Hoadley road is nearing completion. Miss McCormick returned to Edmonton on Tuesday's train.

A man who had taken pity on a lad and given him work as junior clerk kept him at the office rather than allow him to go home.

The lad became sulky and performed his duties in a very dilatory manner. At last his employer turned on him.

"You ungrateful rascal, where would be now but for me?"

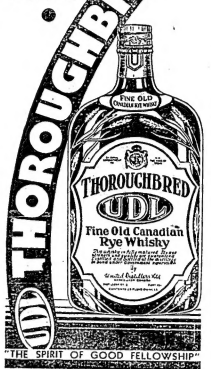

"At a cricket match," was the answer.

Restless CHILDREN

CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's no need to worry. Castoria's gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is need. In cases of colic, diarrhoea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; to do any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.

NEW NORWAY WEST

Miss Ida Butler, who has been training in the General Hospital, Edmonton, returned home on Friday, to stay with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. Solberg and family, of Riley, were visiting at the J. V. Butler home last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Healy of Rosalind, were visiting at the Henry Davis home last week.

Mrs. Florence Maynard and family of Gwynne, were visiting at the Henry Davis home last week.

Blythe Uphaw received word from the Toronto Conservatory of Music that she had passed with an average of 61 per cent.

Miss Agnes McIntyre returned home on Tuesday from a weeks visit with friends at Millet.

A very pleasant time was spent on Sunday at the J. V. Butler home, when they had a picnic and reunion, including about fifty relatives.

The people of the New Norway district are glad to hear that Evangelist Shannon will be coming back here soon to give his farewell talk. May we all be able to go.

Little Phyllis Tinnis is visiting Marjorie Connery this week.

LONE RIDGE

Instead of the picnic scheduled to take place at Pigeon Lake, a Field Day will be held at Mr. Soderstrom's farm, near Ernest Park, on Saturday, August 15th, at 2 p.m. All juniors interested are invited to attend.

On Wednesday, August 19th, a Field Day and class in judging for the Swine Club will be held at the home of E. E. Sparks at 2 o'clock. All young people interested are cordially invited to attend.

LONE RIDGE JUNIOR U.F.A.

The regular meeting of the above was held at Lone Ridge hall on Tuesday, July 28th. There was a large attendance and all enjoyed listening to the delegates reports, which were very interesting.

The picnic to have been held on the 15th has been postponed, owing to the severe hallstom which passed over the district.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. E. E. Sparks on Wednesday, August 19. Everybody welcome.

LONE RIDGE U.F.A.

The regular meeting of the Lone Ridge U.F.A. was held in the home of Mr. Louis Olsen on Monday, August 10th. Quite a good number were present when the president, Mr. A. P. Ewart, opened the proceedings. After the ordinary business, the Hospital Agreement was brought up for discussion and the secretary, Mr. T. Steedman, read the various correspondence in connection with the scheme and informed members of the steps taken and the way it would affect the Bigstone Municipality. Everything was not very clearly and several misunderstandings were removed, and the scheme met with general approval.

The meeting was then favored with a description and explanation of the various legislation brought up in the last session. Mr. H. J. Montgomery, member for Wetaskiwin, gave a very interesting account, pointing out many of the most important issues, and explaining the same in a very simple manner. The speaker was listened to with very close attention, and at the close of his address considerable discussion took place. Mr. Montgomery, answering any question put to him. His address was much enjoyed and a hearty vote of thanks was given him for coming out and giving the local this account of the session.

Lunch was served by the ladies and an informal discussion brought a very pleasant evening to a close. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. O. A. Brown, on September 8th, at 8 p.m.

TRY THIS—ON A FRIEND

Mrs. Herman H. Williams, an artist of Mt. Victory, Ohio, stood like a statue with three swarms of bees weighing about 50 pounds bearing down on her recently, then carried them to a hive without being stung.

Mrs. Williams was summoned to settle a swarm of bees that had gathered on the branch of a briar bush. When they had swarmed she cut off the briar and started toward a hive. Another swarm settled down on her left arm. Fearing to move lest the bees sting her to death, she remained motionless while the insects settled. She started for the hive a second time and a third swarm settled on her neck and shoulders. Again she remained motionless for a quarter of an hour until the bees became quiet. Then she took them to the hive and, aided by a "smoker," put the bees safely away.

Record Time Across Two Oceans

Around half the world in 17 days, London to Yokohama by way of Canada and Honolulu is the record of Miss D. Bewley, of London, en route to join her uncle Allan Cameron, Oriental manager of the Canadian Pacific, Hong Kong, who left Vancouver July 18 on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada. Miss Bewley, in company with Lady Lindley, wife of Sir Francis Lindley, British ambassador in Japan, and other through passengers, left Southampton July 8 arrived in Quebec July 13 on the new Empress of Britain, was rushed to Montreal by boat train where she boarded the Imperial Limited for Vancouver. Reaching Vancouver July 18 at 8.15 she boarded the Empress of Canada, thus obtaining direct connection to the Orient. Combination of the Empress of Britain's fast time across the Atlantic and the Empress of Canada's fast time over the Pacific makes this the fastest trip on record between London and the Orient by way of Canada and Honolulu.

There is No Good Reason Why Alberta Wheat Pool Members Should Not Deliver All Their Grain to

Alberta Pool Elevators

UNDER THE SYSTEM NOW IN EFFECT, ALBERTA WHEAT POOL WILL GIVE MEMBERS THE OPTION:

- 1 Of delivering their wheat on a Pool basis, accepting the prevailing initial payment, and participating in any future payments which may accrue from the pooling thereof; or
- 2 Of disposing of their wheat under any of the methods provided by The Canada Grain Act and obtaining full current market price for the same.

Any portion of a member's wheat may be pooled, or any portion sold outright for cash.

COARSE GRAINS will be handled by Pool Elevators on a commercial basis only, full cash payment being made as during the past year.

Your patronage of Pool Elevators will preserve for Alberta grain producers a grower-controlled, co-operative elevator system that has abundantly proven its value.

Shortness of Breath and Dizziness Could Get No Relief

Mr. P. Rapchuk, 405-7th Ave. E., Calgary, Alta., writes: "Some time ago I was troubled with shortness of breath and dizziness. I tried doctor's medicine, and other remedies, but could not get any relief. I was then advised to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which I did, and found them of great help to me. I only took two boxes, and since then I have not had any of these attacks."

Price 50c. a box at all drugstores and dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

WEEKLY STOCK MARKET REPORT

The following is a weekly report from the Edmonton Stock Yards, as supplied to The Times for the week ending August 11th:

Receipts: Cattle, 558; calves, 160; hogs, 1998; sheep, 252.

Under heavy receipts the market has developed an unsettled tone. Buyers are none too keen in their demands excepting for good light-weight cattle. Today, Tuesday, very few sales are being made and salesmen are finding it hard to move their offers. Prices on the whole are holding barely steady and prospects point to weaker values especially on heavy cattle.

A few choice lightweight cattle yesterday sold at $5.25 to $5.50. Bulk of the good to choice butcher steers and heifers are going at $4.75 to $4.50, medium kinds $4.25 to $4.50, and common to fair from $3.50 to $4.25. Good butcher cows $2.75 to $3.00, common to medium $2.00 to $2.00 to $3.00.

$2.50. Canners and cutters $1.00 to $2.00 and bulls $1.50 to $1.75.

There is fair movement noticeable on the stocker market and prices are showing fairly steady values, stocker steers and heifers selling at $3.00 to $3.75 and cows $2.00 to $2.75. The calf market is showing a stronger tendency, especially on better grades. Good to choice veal calves are selling at $6.00 to $7.00, with common to medium at $4.00 to $5.50.

The hog market is very unsettled today, Tuesday, no market was established. Buyers bid $6.00 for the long hauled northern hogs. Following are the new cuts on the off-grade hogs which are now in effect: Heavies $1.50 per 100, extra heavies $3.50 flat, No. 1 sows $3.00 flat, and other sows $2.50 flat.

Towards the close of last week the lamb market improved materially, with prices higher, good to choice lambs are selling at $5.50 to $6.00, yearlings at $3.50 to $4.00 and ewes $3.00 to $2.00 to $3.00.

Bill Slow and Henry Dash

Bill Slow's stock is all out of date, his business is in an awful state — no trade comes to his store. His ribbons, dress goods, coats and hats would scare a belfry full of bats, and cobwebs frame his door. Bill thinks to advertise would cost just twice as much as he has lost in waiting for a buyer.

But Henry Dash across the way, knows advertising's sure to pay — it draws crowds like a fire. So to our office he came down, for the best sales service in the town, announcing special offers. He gives his trade a chance to save; his profits he can closely shave — the volume fills his coffers.

Have our advertising manager call and show you this remarkable Sales Service.

WHEAT PRICES SHOULD EASE THE MONEY SITUATION

Dominion government policy with respect to the 1931-32 wheat crop has been announced. It contains seven important points vitally affecting the farmers of Western Canada and particularly those who are in the wheat marketing pools. Here is what the Dominion government guarantees to the wheat farmers:

Continuance of co-operative marketing.
Co-operative elevators and terminals to continue in operation on the same basis as independent.
Ample working capital provided for them.

Provincial governments freed from the necessity of making guarantees.
Initial payment of 35 cents a bushel to those who wish to market under co-operative marketing plan.

Protection against panic conditions in the wheat market.
Incidentally the 35 cent initial payment guaranteed for pool wheat does not include the Dominion government five cents a bushel bonus to be paid on all wheat delivered to elevators during this crop year.

DARED TO SWIM NIAGARA, GIRL BEATS RECORD

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 8.—Dared by the crew of the river boat, "Maid of the Mist", little 14-year-old Mary Bell, of Port Dalhousie, Ont., swam the Niagara river, just below Niagara Falls, in ten minutes and set up a record for the crossing. The old record of 11 minutes was held by William "Red" Hill, veteran river man. She entered the water from the United States side and swam across to the boat landing on the Canadian shore.

A collegiate Ford drove up to the parking station. "A dollar for that car, son," cried the attendant. "Sold," replied the youth.

THE DOMESTIC ANIMALS ACT (MUNICIPALITIES)

Sale and Redemption of Impounded Animals (Sec. 48)

Notice is hereby given under Section 48 of The Domestic Animals Act (Municipalities) that one Gray Stallion, two years old, bald face, white hind feet, no brand, was impounded in the pound kept by P. F. Genthier, located on the S.W. ¼ of 12-45-1 E. 5th Mer., on Tuesday, the 21st day of July, A.D. 1931, and that the said animal was sold on the 3rd day of August, 1931, to George Kimmey of Battle Lake, and that said animal may be redeemed by the owner or on his behalf within a period of thirty days from the publication of this notice in The Alberta Gazette, upon payment of all fees and costs due to the municipality and the purchaser of said animal.
For information apply to the undersigned.

ARE WILD FOWL TO BE SAVED?

Governmental authorities and fish and game association officials throughout Canada and the United States are so seriously concerned by the threatened extinction of the wild duck and wild geese that vigorous and effective conservation measures may be anticipated. Alberta has taken a very important lead in this respect by shortening the duck season, by one month, and by reducing the day and season bag limits. As the action was taken, following a conference at Edmonton at which were present Col. Cunningham, game commissioner of Manitoba, and A. E. Etter, game commissioner of Saskatchewan, it may be assumed that the other prairie provinces will follow Alberta's example.

This however, will not be sufficient. The most important remedy lies in action that can be taken in the United States for the reason that 90 per cent of the wild ducks that are shot in the two countries are killed across the line as against 10 per cent in Canada. Yet these ducks are reared in Canada. It is therefore evident that if adequate conservation is to be secured the main action must be come from the United States.

Alberta, one of the great breeding provinces, has made a generous and useful concession. With the other prairie provinces following suit, the responsibility will lie with the United States as to whether practical conservation will be organized and the wild duck, and with it the wild goose, be preserved.

The situation in Western Canada. Dr. W. D. Bell, of the Bureau of Biological Survey, Washington, co-operating with Mr. J. Munro, chief federal migratory bird officer for the western provinces, and with Mr. Frank Farley of Camrose, president of the Alberta Fish and Game Association. They have found that the duck loss in Western Canada, including the more northerly regions, approximates the appalling total of 90 per cent of the supply of a few years ago. Dr. Bell has gone so far as to declare that the fate of the carrier pigeon will be the fate of the wild duck unless conservation measures are taken.—Calgary Herald.

Canada's Drink Bill.—Official reports recently out show that Canadians spent legally for intoxicating liquors in 1930 $192,559,558, which is almost double the national drink bill in pre-war days, when the old bar was in full swing. Added to this the amount spent illegally, and it is estimated that Canada's drink bill is probably well over $200,000,000. Sir Geo. E. Foster, our veteran statesman and life-long prohibition advocate, of whom Canadians are justly proud, commenting on this fact before the Senate, has expressed the opinion that this $200,000,000 if directed into right channels, would very materially change the depressed conditions in Canada by giving employment, success and happiness. Nova Scotia is not included in the above report, since that Province only came into the chain of liquor stores in November. But sales officially reported for 49 days only, give the estimate at $14,000 a day.

Rev. David A. McLennan, who preached the Convention sermon at the World's W.C.T.U. in Toronto, thinks he sees some connection between Canada's drink bill of $200,000,000 and domestic exports 25 per cent less in the same period, railroad earnings down $90,000,000, and bank debts increased.

Everyone who has listened to the late Mrs. McKimney or read her monthly letters in "Tidings," will experience deep disappointment at not hearing the "many interesting things" that were bound to occur, which she promised us "when the Convention was over." But will be gratified to hear at any time how her strenuous work so heartily and efficiently done was appreciated. We note when a number of presentations were made to executive officials in appreciation of service, Mrs. Boole, World's Vice-President, who was appointed W. President was presented in addition to a rose from 48 State Presidents, with a silver fox fur scarf from 600,000 U.S. White Ribboners to show their warmest affection, and Mrs. McKimney who took her place as World's Vice President, was presented with a beautiful crystal necklace from the Canadian women.

POOL'S ASSETS PROVIDE CREDIT

Edmonton, August 13th.—Premier Brownie's comment on the dispatch to the effect that the Western provinces are liable for guarantees of credit to the wheat pools is a definite reiteration that the financing of the wheat pools has been arranged in such a way that an ample line of credit is provided for without postponing the province's mortgage security.
More definitely he adds this further explanation: "Each province must have a line of credit," explains Premier Brownie. "The banks require a margin and insist on its being maintained. To

A SAFE INVESTMENT

If we were endeavoring to advertise a newspaper and secure subscriptions, we should make use of the fact that every newspaper pays its own way into the subscriber's home and really costs him nothing. The point is that it returns him more dollars and cents than he pays for it. We cannot imagine a publication so worthless that some item of information in it, some bargain advertised or some service performed is not worth more to the subscriber in real money than the cost of his subscription.

Almost every newspaper puts money into the pockets of non-subscribers. This is continuously the case when the newspaper leads or supports any movement which brings trade to the town in which it is published. It is the case when the newspaper hammers at local improvements—the spending of a dollar that two may grow in its place tomorrow.

The weekly newspaper at two dollars a year costs the subscriber four cents an issue. We defy anyone to point out where the subscriber can spend four cents and get an equal amount of pleasure and real value. Four cents will not buy much of anything else, but it will buy the week's news of the community and supply other information and service that is likely to be worth many dollars to the reader. No other institution in the world expects so little and returns so much as does the weekly newspaper.—Collingwood Bulletin.

Recent tests of the new mammoth Canadian Pacific locomotive "8000", destined for heavy work in the Canadian Rockies, have brought results in line with the most sanguine expectations. It pulled a train weighing 7,561 tons, almost equal to three normal trains, from Smith's Falls to Montreal a distance of 128 miles, without a hitch, in 54 hours and showed over 30% fuel economy.

They govern a country of 225,000 square miles with a population of about 11,500,000. (723)

These requirements it has been agreed in Alberta that any cash assets of the Pool will be available. Anything over and above this available cash has been satisfactorily arranged for with the assistance of the Dominion Government. As to how or what that assistance is, it is not for me to say, but is a matter for the Prime Minister to announce when he considers it proper to do so.

The cash assets of the Alberta Pool, referred to by Premier Brownie, are understood to be approximately $2,000,000.

MORE MONEY MADE BY FEEDING WHEAT TO CATTLE

Tests conducted at the Federal Experimental Station at Roathorn, Sask., with both low grade barley and wheat on feeding twenty yearling shorthorns proved some interesting conclusions. The grain was fed with cut alfalfa. It proved slightly cheaper to produce a pound of grain with barley than with wheat, but the important feature about the tests was the value found for these grains when marketed through beef cattle. The following table gives the results:

The first column is the market value of steers, selling at cents per pound. The second column is the market value of barley per bushel and the third the market value of wheat per bushel.

Price of Beef	Barley	Wheat
10 cts. per lb.	$1.59	$2.72
9 cts. per lb.	1.37	1.92
8 cts. per lb.	1.15	1.63
7 1/2 cts. per lb.	1.05	1.48
7 cts. per lb.	.94	1.34
6 1/2 cts. per lb.	.83	1.19
6 cts. per lb.	.72	1.04
5 1/2 cts. per lb.	.61	.90
5 cts. per lb.	.51	.75
4 1/2 cts. per lb.	.40	.60
4 cts. per lb.	.29	.45

The lot fed ground wheat seemed to relish their ration better than the lot fed barley, but there was no waste to either lot. An average of five pounds a day of grain was fed each yearling during the test. The experiment shows that with steers selling at 5 to 6 cents wheat can be marketed for around $1.00 a bushel which is a lot better than most people are hoping to get for their grain through the elevators this fall. Why not feed it?

ENJOY THIS WAY TO PREVENT CONSTIPATION

The most frequent cause of illness and poor health is constipation. Its poisons cause headaches, backaches, dizziness, lack of pep—and often lead to serious disease.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—a delicious ready-to-eat cereal, protects against constipation. Its poisons cause, eaten daily, will prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. Its stubborn cases, eat it three times a day.

Isn't this far more pleasant—and far more healthful—than taking habit-forming pills and drugs?

ALL-BRAN also provides iron, which brings a healthy glow to complexions. Many delicious recipes on the package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

When PAIN Comes

WHAT many people call indigestion is very often due to acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sits in the stomach, which neutralizes the acids instantly. And the best known remedy to "rec" it is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this milk, dissolves in water, and has in it, many times that much of the acid, and the symptoms disappear. You will never use another remedy when once you learn the efficacy of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years for correcting excess acids, and see a bottle—any drugstore.

Luce put her head down on her arms and she said "I thought Luce and I were going to be so happy and that it would be so sweet and dear having our own little home all alone together by ourselves after Mother and Father had done everything for me for so long and managed everything for me for so long—and now they just won't leave us alone; they just won't let us do anything. And Lucius would love to eat terrible messes if I cooked them. And he can't—can't even buy a pencil for the office because Pa-Father Gantler buys them."

"Well," I said, "I was going to ask if you had a quarter of a dollar you could spare me, but I can get along somehow, I dare say."

"With her head still down she felt for her purse with one hand and got a quarter out of it and handed it to me."

"They do let you have some money anyway," I said. "That's one good thing."

"Oh, yes," Luce said. "The mothers and fathers decided what my allowance ought to be. Of course, the mothers have to have most of it to run the house."

Well, by golly, I did get mad when I got the straight of it all! All the money Luce touched was a dollar a week they let him have. And what do you think they handed out to Luce? Fifty cents a week! Because they said what did she need any more for?

"Luce," I said to him when I saw him, "What are you anyway—a man or a mouse?"

He sighed and shook his head in a hopeless sort of way.

"I know, Uncle Willard," he said, looking mighty glum, "but what can I do about it? Luce and I would like to run our own home but we know we couldn't manage things half as well as the mothers are managing them. I did want to see if I could handle a business for myself now that I am fully grown but I can see every day that I couldn't manage one half as well as the fathers are managing this one for me. "Oh, help, Mother!" he cried suddenly. "If Luce could put on an apron and dabble around in her little kitchen and mix up a terrible mess of food just for me, we would be so happy. Even if it gave me indigestion."

"You poor down-trodden cool!" I said.

"Don't say a word against them!" Luce begged. "It's just the love and kindness of their hearts that—"

"Love and kindness of four leather skinned old elephants that want to plop down on a couple of new-hatched chicks! Interfering old rhinoceroses! If young married folks ain't to have the fun of being young married folks while they are young married folks, when are they to have it, I'd like to know. Bet right now if you wanted to lend me a dollar you'd send it to me!"

"Well," Luce said, and he did red up some. "I've only got seventy-five cents right now—"

So I only took a quarter of a dollar off him, but I kept my eye peeled on Luce and Lucey pretty close and they certainly weren't happy by any manner of means. Ed, Gantler and Will loves running Luce's business, and Sarah Gantler and Emma Tanner were like two girls with a new playhouse. All four of them got fatter and fatter, but Luce and Lucey began to grow thin and were more and more crushed and quiet and uninterested.

I declare, I sat hours and hours every day just trying to think what a man could do to give those kids a chance to live their own lives.

"Luce," I said another time when he had let me have a quarter of a dollar, "you look mighty depressed."

"Uncle Willard," he said, "I am. And Luce is worse depressed than I am. Sometimes," he said, "shaking his head, "I almost wish I hadn't been born. It seems so wrong for us to be unhappy when it ought to be the happiest time of our lives."

"When you're young,"

"No, I don't mean that," Luce said, "I mean—well, Uncle Willard, Luce and I are about to become a father and mother."

"Three hip hoorays and a ringtailed tiger," I shouted, but Luce put his hand on my arm.

"Don't," he begged. "Don't! I can't bear it Uncle Willard. You, being a bachelor can't see what it means to Luce. You can't even guess what it means to be a mother with a little infant child of your own to bathe and dress and cuddle, and then to know that two drafted women will do all the bathing, dressing and cuddling and probably not let you touch the child!"

"Luce!" I said sternly, "now is the time to show whether you are a man or a mouse."

"Oh, I'm a mouse!" he said promptly. "We are both mice, Luce and I. Uncle Willard, we are not even allowed to choose the name—or the names—for our child or children."

"Children?"

"It may be twins," Luce said. "Father Gantler says it will be a boy and its name will be Augustus and Mother Gantler says it will be a girl and its name will be Clara. Luce and I don't like either names, but it's decided. And Mother Tanner says it will be twins and their names will be Augustus and Clara. And the worst of it is that Father Tanner has set his mind that it will be twin boys and that they will be Augustus and Reginald."

"You and Luce have one chance, yet," I told him. It might be twin girls. They could only call one of them the other one."

"If they are twin girls, they are to be Clara and Laura. They didn't even give us that chance, Uncle Willard. After each one had decided what would be what, they got into a sort of League of Parents and named the last chance Laura."

Meanwhile Mother Tanner and Mother Gantler were busy as squirrels making little bits of clothes and embroidering them all over the back and front and edges. Once in a while they let Luce do a plain piece, then ripped it apart and did it over the right way. One day when I went down to the office to see if Luce could loan me a quarter of a dollar, I caught Luce jamming a pair of knitting needles and part of a little blue sock into her desk drawer. She began hitting the typewriter keys fast and hard, but when she saw it was me she stopped. As soon as he had given me a quarter of a dollar, Luce motioned to me to come outside.

"Uncle Willard," he said, "I'm worried about Luce. She's getting worse and worse depressed and even Dr. Barlow says he's worried about her."

"He does, does he?" I said. "How do the parents feel about it?"

"Well," Luce said, "the mothers say it is a phase. Father Gantler don't say anything. Father Tanner is some worried."

"Luce, if you had any more spunk than a mouse, you would get right up on your hind legs and tell somebody what is what; but I don't suppose I can look for that in you. And you know how much I count for around here—about as much as a pint of skim milk in the ocean. But if you and Lucey back me up, maybe I can work things around so that Luce can mother her own babe in a week or two at least."

"Uncle Willard," he said, "if you can do that, I'll do anything in the world for you."

"Well, it's plain to me that unless Luce goes to a hospital over to Chicago, there's no telling what will happen. Run down like she is, we'd be taking a terrible chance leaving her here where specialists ain't within one minute's search. Doc Barlow ain't so bad. If Luce could manage to get worse and worse depressed—"

"Uncle Willard," said Luce eagerly, grasping my hand, "it will be a pleasure for Luce to get depressed under the circumstances. I see what you mean—in the hospital the mothers won't be let mother our babe—"

"You guessed it, Luce."

I had a genuine heart-to-heart talk with Doc Barlow, and I'll say for him that he listened with both his ears. "I had a notion that was at the bottom of the trouble, Willard," he said. "But a man can't come out and say that a person is suffering from too much love and affection."

The parents took it standing, better than I had expected. Father Gantler and Father Tanner checked up Luce's books and said it could be afforded. And maybe the mothers were a little scared—a doctor's word goes strong with women. Mother Tanner said immediately that she would go with Luce to Chicago.

"I think it would be better for Dr. Barlow to go," Mother Gantler said instantly. "He knows the case and you would only worry Emma."

"Luce is my daughter; I must be near her," Emma said.

Luce told me about it and I went to see Mrs. Gantler. I approached the subject sort of careful, asking if she could loan me a quarter of a dollar without crimping herself. And then I said I guessed I could get it from Emma, seeing that she couldn't spare it, but that Emma was pretty busy planning to go to Chicago with Luce.

"Not that I approve of it," I said, "seeing how it may irritate Luce to feel that her mother is having to eat hotel cooking. But it is going to be nice for Emma, getting a first whack at the baby that way. It is wonderful how infants fix their affections right at first that way. Like a pup—first come, first loved."

Mrs. Gantler looked pretty grim at that, and I could see how her mind was working. And she said that she guessed that she could spare me a quarter of a dollar after all. The outcome was that Luce and Lucey went to Chicago with Doc Barlow. I believe that if Emma had tried to get on the train, Sarah would have grabbed her by the hair and held her until either the hair or the train pulled out.

Doc Barlow came back the next day, rubbing his hands together and beaming, saying it was wonderful what just a whiff of lake air had done to brace up Luce and that the specialist said that the whole outlook was as perfect as possible. And the day after that got a letter from Luce.

"Went to a restaurant and ordered just what we pleased," he wrote, "and nobody said 'perhaps Luce had better not eat that,' or anything. If the waiter had recommended anything I would have given him a punch in the jaw. It is wonderful, Uncle Willard. We bought a cradle today. Luce is making some baby clothes on her own. I told her the stitches were so big the kid would catch his feet in them, but she said 'What do I care? I am making them myself, for him anyway.'"

A few days later he wrote "Luce's doctor is named Spence and he is a fine fellow. He has a son in the real estate business here, and I went around to see his shop. They have a swell system here in Spence's office. They give a man a salary and commission and hand him a prospect and nobody bothers him until he closes the deal or falls down on it."

That was all I heard until the day five telegrams came and one was for me. It said "Fine boy. Luce fine. Happiest man in America."

A couple of days later I got another letter: "The nurse let Luce hold the baby within an hour after he was born and the kid is wearing a dress. Lucey made. We have been talking over a name for him and we don't either of us seem to care for Augustus very much. Luce wants to call him Lucius, but I don't know. He has gained half an ounce yesterday."

That was the last letter I got for quite some time, and the next one said, "Luce is out of the hospital now, and we have decided to stay a day or two till she gets used to handling the kid herself before we trust him on the train. We are going to call him Lucius after his dad."

Three or four days later I went down to see if maybe Will had a quarter he could spare me, but the minute I poked my head in the office Ed. Gantler shouted "Get out of here, you." I saw they had some important business on hand and a telegram on the desk so I got out. I went down to the post office, and there was a letter for me from Luce. It was pretty long, but part of it was mighty interesting.

"I've telegraphed father and Mr. Tanner," it said, "that I have taken a job in the Spence real estate office here. Luce and I found a fine apartment and she cooks all the meals and tends to the kid herself. We have two rooms and a kitchen. Having a grand time."

I folded the letter up and stuck it in my pocket, and when I got back home I wrote Luce an answer.

"Hope you and Luce do fine. Things are not too good for me here just now and I guess yours truly and Luce's folks are going to be sort of irritable for a while so. If you happen to have a quarter to spare me, I could make good use of it."

And by golly, by return mail what do you think I got? A five dollar bill! Yes sir, a five-dollar bill and a snap of the baby!

Bishop Beauchamp of Tennessee said in an interview in Nashville:

"Preachers nowadays are paid so little that to choose a preacher's career means sacrifice, but in the past it often meant laziness."

"Booker Washington used to tell his Tuskegee pupils a yarn about an old colored man picking cotton on a hot July afternoon. The old fellow stood up, straightened out his back with a groan, and then said:

"Oh Lawd, de cotton am so grassy, de work am so hard, and de sin am so hot, Ah believe dis darky am called to preach."

"Well," sighed her lover, since you don't want to marry me, perhaps you will return the ring." "If you must know," snapped the girl, "your jeweler has already called for it."

for a year or more---and made no effort to "settle up"---you would make every effort to COLLECT the two-spot, whether it made me "mad" or not, wouldn't you? And you wouldn't be anxious to sell me anything more until I had arranged payment!

Then suppose that, in addition to me, Smith and Jones and Bailey and Whos's owed you each $2. Including my debt, that makes $10 coming to you, and NO ONE paying, each one of your debtors saying: "Why it's only $2---what's the hurry?"---but when the $2 is multiplied 5 times it's $10, and when it's multiplied by hundreds it's a lot of money!

SUMMER DIARRHOEA

Every year there occurs an appalling loss of infant lives from what is commonly known as summer diarrhoea. In Canada, one death in every five is that of a baby who has not reached his first birthday. Of this large number, of infant deaths, a large percentage are due to diarrhoea.

The best and surest protection against this condition is breast feeding. Whenever such deaths are investigated, it is found that most of the cases have occurred amongst infants who were artificially fed. Providing the mother is healthy and that she is living a healthy life and using proper foods, her milk contains the right material for her child. In addition, breast milk is sterile, and because it is not handled, there is no danger of its becoming contaminated with germs. There are many other good reasons why a mother should nurse her child, but the one reason that it protects against diarrhoea should be sufficient to make every mother realize what her duty is in this matter.

The baby who is artificially fed should be fed according to the directions which the family doctor gives. It will be necessary to change his feedings from time to time as he grows older. Every care must be taken to secure a safe milk and to keep it cold, clean and covered. Pasteurized milk is safe milk. If there is any question as to the purity of the milk, it should be boiled.

Diarrhoea is due either to a faulty diet, for example one which contains too much sugar, or to germs which later usually gain entrance into the body through contaminated milk. Diarrhoea is always a serious condition and no mother should consider herself able to deal with it; she needs the help of her doctor and she should be able to secure his assistance without delay.

A common mistake is to think that diarrhoea is due to teething or some other similar condition. Many mothers seem to think that diarrhoea is something from which every baby suffers and that it requires no particular attention, or that it can be cured by repeated doses of castor oil. It is just because it is not taken seriously that so many deaths occur. If, when diarrhoea does occur, proper treatment is secured promptly, then, in most cases, the serious and fatal results can be prevented. It is, of course, best to prevent the condition, but if it does occur the mother should understand that delay in securing treatment may cost the baby his life.

The baby should be breast-fed. Failing that, he should be fed, according to directions, and the milk used should be pure and safe. If in spite of precautions trouble does occur, prompt treatment is needed.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 154 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

30 YEAR OLD JERSEY COW

HAS DROPPED 28 LIVING CALVES

What is doubtless a world's record for calving within the Jersey breed was made by an old cow belonging to Mr. S. A. Savage, an Alberta, Canada, farmer, which recently died in her thirty-first year. In June, 1930, she dropped her twenty-eighth calf and at the time of her death was carrying her twenty-ninth.

This grand old mother-cow was a striking example of the longevity and hardness of the Jersey breed, for she had lived all her life in a country where temperatures of 20 to 30 degrees below zero are common in winter and where the thermometer frequently goes as high as 100 degrees in the summer months.

We do not recall that there ever was a cow of the breed that equalled her calving record. If there was, the man who knows of it is derelict in his duty to the breed in not making it known. We believe she has the breed record but invite contradiction and proof.—From Jersey Bulletin, U.S.A.

WHOLE WHEAT AN IDEAL "DEPRESSION" DIET

In these days when family incomes are often insufficient to afford expensive foods, many medical men urge housewives to concentrate on those cheaper articles of diet which are known to possess high food values. Whole Wheat foods, for instance, are remarkably economical in that, while inexpensive, they contain many important elements necessary to build up and sustain bodily health.

"Shredded Wheat" is a striking example of a whole wheat product which can be served in many appetizing forms. It is made entirely of Canadian whole wheat with nothing added and nothing taken away. It is perfectly palatable yet inexpensive and two biscuits of it served with whole milk makes a perfectly balanced meal for either children or adults.

Between 160 and 170 head of horses were shipped in from Basano on Saturday to the Millet stock yards, where the local farmers and village boys are bidding on them.

Mrs. Kent and Miss Irene, accompanied by Misses Selma and Margaret Gulekson of Wetaskiwin, left for Pigeon Lake on Tuesday, where they will spend a couple of weeks.

Mrs. Hugh Gray and her mother Mrs. Betty McPherson, who have been visiting with friends in the Millet district, returned to their home in New Westminster, B.C., on Tuesday.

Miss Anna Mae Davis returned to Edmonton on Saturday, after spending the past month with her aunt, Mrs. Chas. Brinker. Miss Helen Davis returned with her, and will spend a couple of weeks with her father before school starts.

A few friends surprised Henry Moonen and bride on Monday night to the tune of cow bells and tin pans. The newlyweds appeared and invited them in, and a very pleasant evening was spent. A dainty lunch was served by the bride. The party then returned to their homes, after the wishes for a happy future to Hank and Helen.

THE SPIRIT OF 1807...

Perhaps the most constructive and certainly the most romantic episode of the development of Canada's great North West, was the formation in 1873, of the Royal North West Mounted Police. McCallum's, a veteran amongst Scots whiskeys... had then passed its 66th milestone. Today, in its 125th year, it enjoys wider repute than ever as a genuine Scots Whisky of unvarying high quality... blended, aged-in-the-wood and BOTTLED in Scotland. Sold only in 26 1/2 oz. and 40 oz. bottles.

LULLABY LUNCHEONS

(By Barbara B. Brooks)
The hours which a mother spends holding her child in her arms, crooning a lullaby and watching him drift into the land of nod, are sacred to her. It is then that the troubles of the day are smoothed out and everything is made right in the world. They are happy hours and afterwards the strains of a certain melody may recall pleasant childhood memories. Reluctant at leaving his bit of play, the child is often a bit fretful. His eyes may still be bright from the excitement of the evening's games and his cheeks flushed from exercise. He is too hot or too cold. He wants a drink of water or something to eat. These are perfectly natural wants and the wise mother will recognize them.

Many children rest better if they are given a lullaby before going to bed. Of course, the food taken at this time must be light and easily digested. The ideal dish for the extra meal is corn flakes with either hot or cold milk. It is easily digested, nourishing and every child loves it, and it is so simple for the mother to prepare.

His Face Was Covered With

Sore Pimples

Mr. George Chaverton, Banff, Ont., writes: "My face was covered with sore pimples which no treatment I had tried would rid me of them. Then there came a day when a friend suggested I try Burdock Blood Bitters. Well, I did, and after the first bottle my face was fairly well cleared up of the pimples, and I was feeling that I had more life in me, and before the end of the second bottle I was like a different man; full of energy, and could eat, sleep and work like a young man of twice my age. I have the third bottle on hand, and I intend to keep it, but I intend to always take an occasional dose of B.B.B., as I want to keep the skin I have acquired with the help."

ALBERTA PIONEER OF 1880

PASSES AT ADVANCED AGE

(By Annie L. Geets)

Red Deer, Aug. 7.—One of the earliest pioneers of Alberta was removed by the death at Red Deer recently of Jas. Youmans, retired missionary of the Methodist church.

Mr. Youmans was born at Picton, Prince County, Ont., April 2, 1884. He and Mrs. Youmans came to Alberta in the spring of 1880, with a company of thirty missionaries whom Rev. John McDougall recruited in Ontario, to be assigned to the various mission fields.

On June 17, 1880, the party left Ontario by way of the Great Lakes, each missionary having provided himself with the bare necessities to start house keeping. It was not until some years later that the railway connected Ontario with the prairie provinces.

At the extreme end of Lake Superior they left the boat and were taken by rail to the Missouri River and thence by boat to Fort Benton. They had brought conveyances with them, and at Fort Benton they purchased horses, and proceeded overland into Alberta, guided by the indefatigable Rev. John McDougall.

Mr. and Mrs. Youmans were assigned to Whitefish Lake, 140 miles north east of Edmonton, and after a short rest at Calgary they proceeded on the long trek north, the latter part of July.

The first part of the journey they had the company of Mr. and Mrs. Glass who were to establish a mission field at Bears Hill, ten miles south west of what is now Wetaskiwin. They each possessed a team and buckboard, on which all their earthly goods were stored, as well as provisions for the journey.

Until the year of the rebellion, 1885, Mr. and Mrs. Youmans labored faithfully among the Indians at this point. There was no other white man or woman nearer than one hundred miles; but once a year they took a trip to Edmonton or other mission post, where they spent a happy week exchanging reminiscences with other of their kind.

During the rebellion Mr. and Mrs. Youmans went through a trying time. The Indians were very hostile, and about four weeks they were obliged to hide in the woods, their only provisions being a slab of bacon and what rabbits they were able to snare. Then, their white friends from Edmonton, hearing of their plight, sent trusty Indian guides to bring them to Fort Victoria, where they remained until the close of the rebellion. Mr. Youmans acting as quartermaster of the fort there.

After the rebellion, they returned to their mission at Whitefish Lake, finding the buildings unoccupied. When things had settled to their old routine, Mr. Youmans fixed up his red river cart and he and Mrs. Youmans went on a visit to Rev. John McDougall and his wife at Morley. While there, arrangements were made for them to take up work at Morley.

The years of the rebellion had told on Mrs. Youmans, and after five and a half years at the orphanage which was established at Morley, they were obliged to give up the work. For six months Mr. Youmans taught the newly established school at Springbank, eighteen miles from Calgary. Then they were assigned to the mission at Bears Hill, south west of Wetaskiwin, where they remained for seven years. Mr. Youmans acting as teacher, preacher and sometimes doctor, among the Indians.

In 1898 a change was made regarding the missionary work. The Indian settlement at Bears Hill had somewhat scattered and for three years Mr. Youmans taught a school of white children at Ponoka during the summer months, returning to the mission at Bears Hill for the week-ends. From Friday night till Monday morning he labored among the Indians there.

There was only two white families at Ponoka at that time, the pupils coming from the surrounding districts. During the winter months, Mr. Youmans taught the Indian children at Pigeon Lake. After the winter's catch of fish, the Indians were scattered to the four winds, and Mr. and Mrs. Youmans would return for the summer to Bears Hill and Ponoka.
